

Keynote Speaker Profile

Martin Levins

Martin Levins, is currently employed at The Armidale School as Director of Information Technology and Coordinator of Technological and Applied Studies.

Martin's experience goes beyond the classroom to include consultancy in office technologies, publishing, advertising and journalism. His education experience runs the full gamut from Primary to Tertiary and includes significant involvement in the identification of education and training needs, and the development of education, training and professional learning.

An Education Columnist for Australian Macworld and regular presenter at domestic and international conferences, he has built an extensive network of contacts in the education and technology fields.

Martin is a team player, with a wealth of experience in opportunities analysis and assessment, and the ability to bring good ideas to fruition.

His particular interest is the enhancement in learning that can happen with appropriate immersion in Information Communications Technologies. As such he is a keen student of technology, educational philosophies and change management.

St. Marks Catholic College is a relatively new school that has been designed to meet the current and future need of students in the 21st Century. The school is fully covered by a WIFI network and every student carries a laptop. This venue gives us the opportunity to run a fully WIFI conference - So bring your own WIFI equipped laptop and experience the use of Web 2.0 technologies during the conference.
